Law, Rights and Ideology in Russia Bill Bowring 2013-04-17 Law, Rights and Ideology in Russia: Landmarks in the destiny of a great power brings into sharp focus several key episodes in Russia's vividly ideological engagement with law and rights. Drawing on the author's own experience of consultancy and teaching in many regions of Russia and on library research in Russian-language texts, Bill B provides unique insights into people, events and ideas. The book starts with the surprising role of the Scottish Enlightenment origins of law as an academic discipline in Russia in the eighteenth century. The Great Reforms of Tsar Aleksandr II, abolishing serfdom in 1861 and introducing jury trial in 1864, are then examined and debated as genuine reforms or the response to a revolutionary situation. A new interpretation of the life and work of the Soviet legal theorist Yevgeniy Pashukanis leads to an analysis of the conflicted attitude of the USSR to international law and human rights, especially the right of peoples to self-determination. The complex history of autonomy in Tsarist and Soviet Russia is considered, alongside the collapse of the USSR in 1991. An examination of Russia's plunge into the European human rights system under Yeltsin is followed by the history of the death penalty in Russia. The secrets of the ideology of 'sovereignty' in the Putin era and their impact on law and rights are revealed. Throughout, the theme is the centuries long hegemonic struggle between Westernisers and Slavophiles, against the backdrop of the Messianic idea proclaimed in 1917 that Russia, proclaimed Russia to be the Third Rome, was revived in the mission of Soviet Russia to change the world and which has echoed in contemporary Eurasianism and the ideology of sovereignty.

Women's Legal Landmarks Esika Rackley 2018-12-27 Women's Legal Landmarks commemorates the centenary of women's admission in 1919 to the legal profession in the UK and Ireland by identifying key legal landmarks in women's legal history. Over 80 authors write about landmarks that represent a significant achievement or turning point in women's engagement with law and law reform. The landmarks cover a wide range of topics, including matrimonial property, the right to vote, prostitution, surrogacy and assisted reproduction, rape, domestic violence, FGM, equal pay, abortion, image-based sexual abuse, and the ordination of women bishops, as well as the life stories of women who were the first to undertake key legal roles and positions. Together the landmarks offer an intervention in the recovery of women's lost history and in the development of methodology of feminist legal history as well as a demonstration of women's agency and activism in the achievement of law reform and justice.

O N E E V E R Y O N Ann Hamilton 2020-03-21 Ohio State students, faculty and staff were photographed by artist and professor Ann Hamilton through a semi-transparent membrane that registers in focus only what immediately touches its surface while more softly the gesture or outline of the body. In these images, touch-something we feel more than we see-is visible. In the glance of cloth's fall, the weight of a hand, the press of a cheek, the possibility of recognition in portraits haunted by contact behind the semi-opaque film, one can hear but can not see, hidden until stepping toward the surface, guided by my voice. Each image is the object, the face, a hand, or cloth touching the membrane is revealed in focus, the shallow depth of field a consequence of the membrane's optical qualities. The images made in this exchange-between a subject that offers self or object and a voice that offers for the visually absent camera-record an interiority that is perhaps more private, more vulnerable than the self we offer up in the presence of a constantly present camera. Following and trusting the voice while having a sense of being hidden makes a space for this vulnerability. Each image is a tactile register of an exchange.

Reconstructing Historic Landmarks Made Brown 2018-08-24 Historic reconstructions have been a consistent part of the historic preservation and heritage conservation movements in the United States and Canada. Indeed, reconstruction has been the priority at the most influential historic sites for example: the Governor's Palace and the Capitol at Colonial Williamsburg, and in Canada the Fortress of Louisbourg. Dozens of other reconstructions have appeared during the past century in North America, undertaken by individuals, communities, states and provinces, and by national agencies responsible for cultural heritage. Despite this prevalence, historic reconstructions have received little scholarly attention and the question of what motivated the proponents of these reconstructions remains largely unexamined. This book explores that question through detailed studies of ten historic reconstructions located throughout Canada and the United States, ranging from 1908 to 2011. Drawing upon diverse archival sources and site investigations, the proponents of each site are given voice to address their need to remake these landmarks, be it to sustain, to challenge or to subvert a historical narrative or – with reference to contemporary heritage studies – to reclaim these spaces. Historic Reconstructions provides a fascinating insight into these shifting concepts of history in North America and will be of considerable interest to students and scholars of historic preservation and indeed to heritage professionals involved in reconstructions themselves.

Personal Effects Deborah Holdstein 2002 In Personal Effects, Holdstein and Bleich compile a volume that cuts across the grain of current orthodoxy. These editors and contributors argue that it is fundamental in humanistic scholarship to take account of the personal and collective experiences of scholars, researchers, critics, and teachers. With this volume, then, these scholars more fully explore the intersections of the social with subjectivity, with voice, ideology, and culture, and to consider the roles of these intersections of academics who study writing and literature. Taken together, the essays in this collection carry forward the idea that the personal, candidly subjective and intersubjective, must be part of the subject of study in humanities scholarship. They propose an understanding of the personal in scholarship that is more helpful because more clearly anchored in human experience.

Essential Humanities Lois Parrott 2013-08-15

Landmarks in Humanities Gloria Fiero 2012-01-11 Landmarks in Humanities is a single-volume survey of global culture designed to help students of humanities, cultural history, and history of the arts to understand and appreciate the relevance of historical ideas to their own daily lives. In chronological sequence, Landmarks guides students on a journey of the most notable monuments of the human imagination and the most prominent ideas and issues that have shaped the course and character of the world's culture from prehistory to the present. The landmarks that mark this journey are the great works of their place and time and, in some cases, all time. The text reflects the author's extensive background in the study of Humanities, which has enabled her to craft a narrative that is at once brief and comprehensive, giving students a thorough understanding of the interrelatedness of various modes of cultural expression—art and architecture, literature, philosophy, and music—without overwhelming them with detail. Each of the text's chapters is centered on a key idea related to the period being discussed, and contains a series of valuable pedagogical features including timelines, high-quality maps, and boxed material. Each chapter also takes a unique cultural or historical point of view, often to explore the primary sources, the stylistic relationship between two or more images and ideas or between text and image, and contemporary Western cultural landmarks and cross-cultural influences. In this edition, each chapter opens with "A First Look" at a landmark artwork that illustrates the key idea of the chapter and acts as a cultural guidepost to that chapter's overarching theme. This new feature explains the artwork's significance as a landmark in its own time as well as in ours.

Landmark Papers in Neurosurgery Reuben Johnson 2010-08-12 Evidence-based medicine is a concept that has come to the forefront in the past few years. Clinicians are increasingly encouraged to practise patient management based on available evidence in the scientific literature. For example, new pharmacological therapies are only used when large randomized trials have 'proven' that a particular therapy is better than existing ones. This is also the case in surgical specialties, although surgery has traditionally seen a lack of use of evidence-based information, with individual surgeon's preferences being most influential in treatment choices. However, more recently, there has been a large expansion of trials and studies aimed at providing surgeons with information to guide their choices using firm evidence. This book provides a detailed summary of the most important trials and studies in neurosurgery, allowing the reader to rapidly extract key results. Each chapter is written by a prominent international neurosurgeon in that particular field, making this book essential reading for all neurosurgeons and trainees in the field.

Ben-Hur. A Tale of the Christ Lew Wallace 1887

Humanities for the Environment Domi Adamson 2016-11-10 Humanities for the Environment, or HfE, is an ambitious project that has been running from 2013-2015 was funded by a generous grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. The project networked universities and researchers internationally through a system of 'observatories'. This book collects the work of contributors networked through North American, Asia-Pacific, and Australia-Pacific observatories. Humanities for the Environment showcases how humanists are working to 'integrate knowledges' from diverse cultures and ontologies and pilot new 'constellations of practice' that are more than traditional contemplative or reflective outcomes (the book, the essay) towards solutions to the greatest social and environmental challenges of our time. With the still controversial concept of the 'Anthropocene' as a starting point for a widening conversation, contributors range across geographies, ecosystems, climates and weather regimes; moving from icy, melting Arctic landscapes to bleaching Australian Great Barrier Reef, and from an urban pedagogical 'laboratory' in Phoenix, Arizona to Vatican City in Rome. Chapters explore the ways in which humanists, in collaboration with communities and disciplines across academia, are responding to warming oceans, disappearing islands, collapsing fisheries, evaporating reservoirs of water, exploding bushfires, and spreading radioactive contamination. This interdisciplinary work will be of great interest to scholars in the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences interested in interdisciplinary questions of environment and culture.

Writing America Shelley Fisher Fishkin 2015-11-11 Winner of the John S. Tuckey 2017 Lifetime Achievement Award for Mark Twain Scholarship from The Center for Mark Twain Studies American novelist E.L. Doctorow once observed that literature "endows the world with meaning." Yet, as this wide-ranging new book vividly illustrates, understanding the places that shaped American writers and their art can provide deep insight into what makes their literature truly meaningful. Published on the eve of the 50th anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act, Writing America is a unique, passionate, and eclectic series of meditations on literature and history at over 150 important National Register historic sites, all pivotal to the stories that make up America, from chapels to battlefields, plantations to immigration stations; and from theaters to internment camps. The book considers not only the traditional sites of literary tourism, such as Mark Twain's sumptuous Connecticut home and the peaceful woods surrounding Walden Pond, but also local sites that highlight the diversity of American literature, from the New York tenements that spawned Abraham Cahan's fiction to the pump house that irrigated the fields in which the farm workers central to Gloria Anzaldúa's poetry picked produce. Rather than providing a cursory overview of these authors' achievements, acclaimed literary scholar and cultural historian Shelley Fisher Fishkin offers a deep and personal reflection on how key sites bore witness to the struggles of American writers and inspired their art. She probes the global impact of American writers' innovative art and also examines the distinctive contributions to American culture by American writers who wrote in languages other than English, including Yiddish, Chinese, and Spanish. Only a scholar with as wide-ranging interests as Shelley Fisher Fishkin would dare to bring together in one book writers as diverse as Gloria Anzaldúa, Nick Carraway, Black Elk, David Bradley, Abraham Cahan, S. Alice Callahan, Raymond Chandler, Frank Chin, Elizabeth Cook-Lynn, Countee Cullen, Frederick Douglass, Paul Laurence Dunbar, Jessie Fauset, William Faulkner, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Allen Ginsberg, Jovita González, Rolando Hinojosa, Langston Hughes, Zora Neale Hurston, Lawson Fusao Inada, James Weldon Johnson, Erica Jong, Maxine Hong Kingston, Irena Klepfisz, Nella Larsen, Emma Lazarus, Sinclair Lewis, Genny Lim, Claude McKay, Herman Melville, Scott Momaday, William Northup, John Okada, Miné Okubo, Simon Ortiz, Américo Paredes, John P. Parker, Ann Petry, Tomás Rivera, Wendy Rose, Morris Rosenfeld, John Steinbeck, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry David Thoreau, Mark Twain, Yoshiko Uchida, Tino Villanueva, Nathanael West, Walt Whitman, Richard Wright, Hisaye Yamamoto, Anzia Yezierska, and Zitkala-Ša.
